Hello XDA, I've been wanting to root my S6 for a while now, and i think you can do it with adb. So when trying this i noticed i needed an unlocked bootloader, and i thought i had it because i had CRom service on my S6, but never opened it. When i did, it just crashed. Now, i'm not sure if I can just use or i need something else. I'm on Mac so i am very, very limited. I at least can get adb to work. If i can use adb and or fastboot to unlock my device's bootloader (without messing DM Verity) then please tell me right away. Go to Settings - About Device - Build number. Tap on that repeatedly until you see that Developer Options has been enabled. Go back to Settings. You will now see a new entry called Developer options. Tap on that. Under Developer options you will see OEM Unlock. Switch that to On. And you are done! Just that easy! Reactions: lucianobntao Go to Settings - About Device - Build number. Under Developer options you will see OEM Unlock. Switch that to On. And you are done! Just that easy! It's not that easy, the option is called "Allow OEM unlocking" which I already have turned on. All that option does is allow the bootloader to be unlocked. 920T Unlocked. I know. A rare S6 model, bought in Panama. What variant android are you on, btw the user previous is correct, once you use OEM unlock all you need to do is flash cf-autoroot, OEM unlock make sure that after rooting the phone does not trip frp and just lock you out of your device. ---------- Post added at 07:49 PM ---------- Previous post was at 07:47 PM ---------- Just another note the g920t is classified as a T-mobile variant, it's got its own whole forum here on xda, if you don't get any luck here might be an idea to pop on over there and have a look see Reactions: droppedpriorities What version android are you on, btw the user previous is correct, once you use OEM unlock all you need to do is flash cf-autoroot, OEM unlock make sure that after rooting the phone does not trip frp and just lock you out of your device. ---------- Post added at 07:49 PM ---------- Previous post was at 07:47 PM ---------- Just another note the g920t is classified as a T-mobile variant, it's got its own whole forum here on xda, if you don't get any luck here might be an idea to pop on over there and have a look see Ok, I'm on 6.0.1 (Y is Samsung so slow when releasing updates) and a quick reminder: I'm on Mac, how am I supposed to flash CF-autoroot? And I got confused by "make sure after rootingthe phone does not trip frp and just lock out of your device" Do you mean to be careful not to brick my device? FRP is factory reset protection, if you don't allow OEM unlock when after you have carried out root and try to log into phone again you won't be able to do so, it's a security feature, frp is very tricky and it's important you make sure you have OEM unlock enabled before trying to do anything. You can use a software called heimdall which is similar to Odin and can be downloaded for mac. Yeah samsung always rolls out updates for international before anything else, just how they work. Before doing anything I highly advise you to visit the g920t forums, you will get more info there than you will here on the international forum. I hope you manage to get things done What version android are you on, btw the user previous is correct, once you use OEM unlock all you need to do is flash cf-autoroot, OEM unlock make sure that after rooting the phone does not trip frp and just lock you out of your device. Thanks for pointing that out. I don't know why I expect people to be grateful on XDA, just because someone tries to help them. Using a Mac, you flash files using Heimdall: Ok so I think I'm good to go: I attached some screenshots checking if everything is correct. Also, is the correct and official site to get Heimdall? And my device's build is G920TUES5DQD1 which was released a few days ago, and I'm not sure if the CF auto root file was based on an earlier update. Will I still be able to use it? is g920v bootloader unlockable? is it possible to downgrade thanks to this oem unlock? Now, i have a verizon s6 920v and doesnt present the "OEM..." option in Dev section. could i know if is unlocht the bootloader, in other way? thanks again. first, i want to thank the ones that can help and enlight others. thanks. Now, i have a verizon s6 920v and doesnt present the "OEM..." option in Dev section. could i know if is unlocht the bootloader, in other way? thanks again. As far as I know, and what has been the fact since the release of the 920V, there's has been no known case where the bootloader has been unlocked. Due to Verizon's restrictions, the S6 is hardlocked. The only way that it might ever be unlocked is if someone reverse engineers the bootloader software, creating an unlocked version that can be flashed, and that will still pass the phone's security checks. I wouldn't hold your breath for it though, because it's been 3 years and no solution yet. i had some issues i have been trying to unlock my s6 smg 9208 everything that i tried failed need really your help i can't use my keyboard and mouse ????
